

The 2 rules for house-training success.

Prevent Accidents. Supervise your puppy in the house. Use a crate when you are not sure if your puppy is empty.

Reward your puppy for going outside. Praise at the right moment, i.e. quietly praise the second he starts "going." Reward with petting and lavishing with praise after he is finished.

PREVENTING ACCIDENTS: LONG-TERM AND SHORT-TERM CONFINEMENT

What is long-term confinement?

A place for your puppy to stay when you can't provide 100% supervision. In other words, when you are out, or busy around the house, and can't keep your eyes on him the entire time. It prevents chewing accidents, potty accidents, and teaches your puppy to be alone. Confinement can be a small room, kennel or a leash tether to a large piece of furniture.

Confinement? Surely that's too strict?

Not at all. It is the best possible start for your puppy in your household. People often give a new puppy complete freedom right away. Then, when he has an accident on the carpet or chews on the legs of the coffee table, they confine him, and confinement becomes a punishment.

Instead, give your puppy a safe place from the beginning, and let him make a gradual and successful transition to his new home. He will be much happier and your furniture will be intact.

When do I use it?

Use a long-term confinement area if you will be gone longer than your puppy can hold it.

Setting up the confinement area.

The ideal confinement area is easy to clean and easy to close off with a door or baby gate. It should be mostly free of furniture and non-puppy related objects. The best places for a confinement area are the kitchen, laundry room, bathroom, or an empty spare room. Furnish with:

- Your puppy's crate (with the door open)
- A chew toy or Kong

What is short-term confinement?

It means crating your puppy. A crate is a terrific training and management tool. It is useful for house-training, brief alone-time, settling, and any form of travel. Most importantly, a crate teaches your puppy to hold it when he has to go to the bathroom. A crate helps your puppy in many ways—and saves your carpets.

Is using a crate cruel?

Absolutely not. A crate can be your puppy's favorite place in the world. Think of it as his crib. Use treats, praise, and toys to make your puppy love his crate.

Just remember never to use the crate for more than 3-4 hours at a time, except for bedtime.

When do I use it?

Use the crate for short absences. General guidelines for crating puppies:

8-10 weeks	up to 3 hours
11-12 weeks	up to 4 hours
13-16 weeks	up to 5 hours
Over 4 months	up to 6 hours

Getting your puppy used to the crate.

Step 1. Begin crate training right away—preferably the first day your puppy is in your home.

Step 2. Throw small tasty treats into the crate one at a time. Praise your puppy when he goes in to get the treat.

Step 3. When your puppy is comfortable going into the crate, practice closing the door for 1-2 seconds, then treat him through the door. Let him back out. Repeat this step many times, gradually building to 10 seconds.

Step 4. Stuff a Kong with something very yummy or use a special bone that will take a lot of time to chew. Put the chewies in the crate. Shut the door. Move about the house normally. Let your puppy back out after 5 minutes or when he finishes his treat. Don't make a fuss over him. Repeat this step several times, varying the length of your absences from 1 to 20 minutes.

Step 5. Next, leave your puppy in the crate with something delicious while you leave the house for short errands, like getting the mail or watering the garden. Gradually build your absences.

Training Tip: When you plan to crate your puppy for longer than an hour, make sure he is well exercised, has gone potty, and is ready for a nap*

Troubleshooting: If your puppy is going to the bathroom in his crate, remove any bedding and make sure he has been pottied before you put him in the crate, and that he is not being left for too long. Make sure you are following the rules for good potty training. If all else fails, call us.*

How to house-train.

Step 1. Take your puppy outside on leash. Take him to the same place every time.

Step 2. When he goes, praise. Offer him a treat when he is finished.

Step 3. If you are in a puppy-safe place, let him off the leash for a little playtime.

If he doesn't go within 5 minutes, put him in his crate for 10-20 minutes, then try again.

A house-training checklist.

- Take your puppy to his potty place first thing in the morning, last thing before bed, shortly after meals, naps, or play sessions, when he comes out of his crate, and generally every hour or so.
- Until your puppy is perfectly house-trained, always go outside with him so you can cheer and reward at the right moment.
- Supervise whenever your puppy is not crated, especially if he is full. If you must take your eyes off him, even for a minute, crate him or put him in his confinement area.
- If you see your puppy sniffing and circling in the house, take him out immediately.

How to handle house-training mistakes.

Interrupt mistakes as they are happening. Don't be too harsh or your puppy will be afraid to go in front of you. After interrupting your puppy, hustle him outside to the potty area. Praise if he finishes there. Clean up the indoor mess with an enzymatic cleaner to remove protein residue that might attract him to the same place again.

Never punish. If your puppy made the mistake one hour or five seconds ago, you are too late. Don't rub his nose in his own mess or smack him, this will simply make him afraid of you, and he won't understand why you do it. You must catch him in the act for the interruption to work, and again, you can't do it too harshly or your puppy will be afraid to go in front of you.

When do I give my puppy free run of the house?

Not until your puppy is chew trained as well as house-trained. This can be as late as 12-14 months old. Then...

At first, confine him to one room at a time. Choose a tiled room, like the kitchen or the bathroom, so accidents can be easily cleaned. Add a room each week your puppy is successful (accident-free), and supervise each time you introduce him to a new room.

Training Tip: Don't think that confinement and crating is too strict on your puppy. You are doing him a big favor. A few short weeks' time investment on your part nets you a lifetime of freedom for your puppy—and you don't have to replace your carpet.*
